Sanford Institution for Savings Steps Up Big!

Last summer, SIS gave the Legacy Foundation a big boost in its efforts to raise money for the campaign with a pledge of over $130,000 to the new high school. Their gift and in-kind donation involved the Athletic Stadium scoreboard, the naming rights to the Main Competition Gym, and a commitment to support the new financial literacy program. SIS has been a critical partner in Legacy's efforts.

Blaine Boudreau SIS CEO, "SIS Bank has been pleased to have the opportunity to partner with the Sanford Schools Legacy Foundation to support this very important project. This new, state-of-the-art facility will serve the on-going educational needs of the Sanford community and the surrounding region today and well into the future."

Allen Lampert, Legacy President "SIS was an early and enthusiastic benefactor of the Legacy Foundation; both with capital and in-kind support. We appreciate all they have done to help make Legacy the success it has become."

Pratt Whitney Sponsors the Precision Manufacturing Lab at SRTC

Pratt Whitney was one of the first regional companies Legacy approached to secure corporate support. Legacy members met with Pratt's senior management team over a year ago to talk about how Pratt Whitney might support the campaign. Pratt was one of the first companies to make a commitment and secured the naming rights to one of the labs at the Sanford Regional Technical Center. The Precision Manufacturing Lab carries their name to recognize their generous gift.

Allen Lampert, "Pratt Whitney was an important regional corporation to help us. They provided us the means to upgrade our Precision Manufacturing Lab and we are grateful for their support."

Legacy SPOTLIGHT

Gina Sawtelle

Every new venture needs early support. When Legacy first started its campaign, one organization that stepped up to help was Above and Beyond Catering. Gina Sawtelle, owner of Above and Beyond provided Legacy with a venue to kick off the campaign. By providing Legacy with the use of the Town Club for its opening social event, Legacy was able to generate considerable community excitement and enthusiasm for the campaign. It was this type of 'in-kind' donation that helped propel Legacy in its capital campaign.

Gina Sawtelle, "When the Sanford Legacy Foundation approached me to support their efforts, I could think of no better way than offering our venue to them to kick off their campaign. Above And Beyond was, and will continue to be, a proud supporter of the Legacy Foundation campaign."
